

NEW ERA OF GREAT PROSPERITY IS DAWNING

AMERICAN BANKERS' HEAD EXPRESSES SUCH AN OPINION

ADVANCED PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS AIDING FARMER

CASH VALUE FARM PRODUCTS NOW $700,000,000 GREATER THAN LAST YEAR

(By United Press)
Chicago, Sept. 30.—All signs point to the inauguration of a new era of great prosperity, President Walter Head of the American Bankers' association, declared today in the principal address to several thousand members of the association, in convention here.

Advanced prices for farm products have brought for the first time since 1920 a promise of renewed agricultural prosperity with resultant restoration of the purchasing power of those engaged in agriculture and consequent revival of other industry, Head said.

"The cash value of the principal farm products—other than livestock—appears likely to be $700,000,000 greater in 1924 than in 1923. Meanwhile the downward trend of other commodity prices has reduced the disparity between the prices of farm products and general price level during each month of 1924 compared with the corresponding month of 1923, although restoration of pre-war price level is not yet in prospect."

Head warned agriculture that it must put sound economic principles to work and not expect political panaceas to end their troubles.

The Cause of Crises
"The American Bankers' association believes that the causes of the agricultural crises were predominantly economic principles and that the remedy lay in the application of sound economic principles, rather than in the pursuit of political panaceas. I did not for a moment—and do not—condemn all legislation which may be proposed for the relief of agriculture. Political action has its proper sphere, but its efficacy is limited to the removal of artificial obstacles which interfere with the normal functioning of economic principles."

Stability in Europe
"Next to the improvement in agriculture, the source of greatest encouragement is the tendency toward political and economic and social stability in Europe," Head said. "The goal of stability has not been reached," Head said, "but all signs point to success."

"Previous disappointments justify caution against too great optimism, but despite all that, we have every reason to believe that there are today greater promises of permanent European stability than at any time since that fateful day in July, 1914, when the great nations of Europe forsook peace for war and plunged headlong into a welter of blood and a maelstrom of destruction."

Dawes Commission
Head praised Charles G. Dawes vice-presidential candidate no the republican ticket, for his work in connection with placing Europe on the road to stability, stating that to Dawes is due "the largest individual measure of credit."

Head also sounded a warning against the efforts to curb the power of the supreme court. The Constitution is the nation's guarantee of rights, he said.

"The Constitution has been, and is now, the greatest existing restraint upon an arrogant majority," Head declared.

"It has been, and is now, the greatest existing defense of the very minorities which at this time are being led to denounce its restrictions—restrictions upon which they themselves have depended in times past, when they were weak and the forces opposing them were strong."

Head walked a neutral path between the republican and democratic parties. Having mentioned Dawes once, he quoted John W. Davis, democratic standard-bearer, twice, and President Coolidge once.

FIVE BANDITS SHOOT UP THE TOWN OF WYKOFF

ROB EXCHANGE STATE BANK OF BETWEEN $500 AND $600

CASHIER MANAGES TO CONCEAL THE REST OF THE FUNDS

(By United Press)
Rochester, Minn., Sept. 30.—Five bandits "shot up" the town of Wykoff, 25 miles south of here in Fillmore county, early today, and robbed the Exchange State Bank of between $500 and $600.

There was considerably more money hidden in the bank, according to Cashier John Wendorf, but he did not divulge where it was concealed.

Authorities are convinced the bandits were members of the same "shootin' gang," that has robbed 20 banks in the Northwest, mostly in Minnesota, in the past few months.

They drove into Wykoff about 3 a. m. and started a program of terrorism. First they cut all telephone wires. Where lights showed through windows the bandits shot them out. Ramona Sherman and Esther Bratrud, school teachers, aroused by the shooting, turned on a light.

"Douse the glim," shouted a bandit through the window. The teachers didn't understand his kind of English and ducked under the covers. The bandits shot out the light.

Mrs. Mary Wendorf, wife of the bank's cashier, turned on a light. It was shot out almost instantly. By that time nearly all of the town's population of 500 persons was awake.

W. C. Theiss, assistant cashier of the bank, fired at a passing automobile. The occupants, it is now believed, were returning from a barn dance near by. No casualties were reported.

The bandits used four shots of soap to open the vault.

Two men worked on the safe, while three others stood guard outside, according to F. W. Kumm, town marshal of Spring Valley. Kumm saw a car on the road to Wykoff and when the robbery was reported he rushed to Wykoff in an attempt to trace them. The bandits drove south out of town and disappeared. Marshall Kumm said they shattered windows in at least eight homes in Wykoff with bullets. From 80 to 90 shots were fired.

business has made this country what it is. We want big business, but it must be honest."

A little later Head quoted Davis again on his opposition to curb the power of the supreme court.

"Mr. Davis is exactly right," Head said, "and President Coolidge is exactly right when he says: 'the people know the difference between pretense and reality. They want to be told the truth. They want to be trusted. They want the power to work out their own material and spiritual salvation. The people want this and common sense.'"

Coolidge Pea for Common Sense
Head interpreted Coolidge's plea for common sense as "nothing less than a return to sound political principle, a rejection of will-o'-the-wisps and abandonment of political chicanery. That is what the bankers of America stand for—regardless of political schemes."

MATE CONSIDERED HIS MERE SLAVE AND DOOR MAT

ALBERT O. LEMKE CHARGES HIS WIFE THREW BANANA AT HIM

RESULTING IN HIS COMPLETE OVERTHROW AMONG THE FURNITURE

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—Objecting to being considered a door mat and slave instead of a wife and helpmate, Dorothy Lemke, 42, yesterday filed her answer to a divorce complaint served on her by her husband, Albert O. Lemke, 43, St. Paul contractor.

Mrs. Lemke also filed a cross-bill, in which she charges her husband with cruelty, compares him to a kaiser and autocrat and asks that he be denied a divorce and she be granted a decree.

In her answer, Mrs. Lemke denies charges made in her husband's complaint. She insists she never was cruel to him, though she admits several times she was obliged to defend herself against his assaults, on slaughters and insults.

Abuse is Charged

Mr. Lemke, the answer charges, "conducts himself about the matrimonial domicile with the arrogance and dictatorial mien of a kaiser and autocrat, taking for granted that the defendant is not his beloved wife and helpmate, but that she was a doormat and slave to him in all things."

She alleges that upon failure of execution of any of his imperial edicts and mandates to her he flew into furious and unreasonable rages and abused her.

Apparently Mr. Lemke charged his wife with throwing a banana at him May 12, 1923, and causing him to be completely upset.

In answer to this, Mrs. Lemke says in her complaint that she did not throw a banana, "which resulted in his complete overthrow among chairs and furniture," and offers the following explanation to substantiate her position. "The allegation is contrary to natural law and science, since it is common knowledge that a banana is a small, soft fruit incapable of being propelled with such force or violence without disintegration, which the defendant pleads is an impossibility for a weak woman of her type as against a large, muscular contractor such as the plaintiff."

Married in 1914

Mrs. Lemke denies charges made by her husband that she has another man and asserts such a person exists only in his imagination.

For her cross-bill, Mrs. Lemke asserts they were married at Worcester, Mass., March 26, 1914.

In 1923, Mrs. Lemke asserts, she started divorce proceedings but abandoned them when her husband promised to treat her as he had previously, but he failed to keep his promise and was away from home often and entertained other women at theatre and dinner parties.

Through Frank McAllister, her attorney, Mrs. Lemke asks that her husband's complaint be dismissed, that she be granted a divorce, that the court order an accounting of all money of her husband, that the $4,000 she charges he took from her be ordered paid to her and that she also be given $250 a month alimony.—St. Paul Daily News.

LIQUOR RAIDS NEAR BEMIDJI NET BIG HAUL

EIGHT MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

1,550 GALLONS OF MASH, 9 STILL AND BEER AND MOON SEIZED

E. G. Boyd, Indian agent mentioned in this article, was formerly stationed in Brainerd. Special Agent George Reardon resides near Gull Lake.

(From Bemidji Daily Pioneer)

One thousand five hundred and fifty gallons of mash, 90 gallons of moonshine, 539 bottles of beer, nine stills and eight men, that is the total result of a series of seizures made last week by Sheriff Julius R. Johnson's force, Indian Officer E. G. Boyd, formerly of Bemidji, Special Agent George Reardon and Chief of Police Louis V. Larson. Samples of the moonshine and beer were kept for evidence, the men were placed under arrest and the balance of the net result was destroyed.

The sheriff's force and the special agents last Tuesday visited the John Buelow farm near the Mississippi river bridge on the Cass lake road and there found a 30-gallon still, some moonshine and four barrels of mash. Buelow was arraigned before Judge C. W. Stanton Friday and pleaded guilty to the charges brought against him. He was given a fine of $100 and a 60-day jail sentence.

On Thursday the same force visited the Chas. Lausche farm in Brook Lake township. Here they confiscated a 40-gallon still, 150 gallons of moonshine, seven cases of beer in pint bottles and 101 quart bottles of beer. Later in the same day at the Ben Kemmer place they got two 30-gallon stills, fifteen 52-gallon barrels of mash, 45 gallons of moonshine, 140 quart bottles of beer.

Sheriff Johnson, the special officers and Chief of Police Larson visited the G. Rucher farm near Bemidji Friday. They found a dug-out about three hundred yards from the house and in it a wash boiler still, 400 gallons of mash, one gallon of moonshine and the other paraphernalia necessary to the manufacture of liquor. That same day this party went into the hills near this place and came across a dug-out distillery in the woods in which they found a wash boiler still in operation and two other stills which were not then in use. There were 550 gallons of mash here, eight gallons of moonshine and the other necessary tools and implements used in making moonshine. The officers took three men into custody there.

Moore Lake township was visited Saturday and on the premises of E. L. Coppennoll there was found a copper wash boiler still, 24 gallons of moonshine, several mash barrels, jugs, bottles, etc.

The several parties apprehended last week were to be arraigned at 1:30 this afternoon before Court Commissioner D. H. Fisk, where it was believed most of them would enter pleas of guilty to the charges which would be brought against them.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—All signs point to the inauguration of a new era of great prosperity, President Walter Head of the American Bankers' association, declared today in the principal address to several thousand members of the association, in convention here.

Advanced prices for farm products have brought for the first time since 1920 a promise of renewed agricultural prosperity with resultant restoration of the purchasing power of those engaged in agriculture and consequent revival of other industry, Head said.

ALBERT O. LEMKE CHARGES HIS WIFE THREW BANANA AT HIM

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—Objecting to being considered a door mat and slave instead of a wife and helpmate, Dorothy Lemke, 42, yesterday filed her answer to a divorce complaint served on her by her husband, Albert O. Lemke, 43, St. Paul contractor.

Mrs. Lemke also filed a cross-bill, in which she charges her husband with cruelty, compares him to a kaiser and autocrat and asks that he be denied a divorce and she be granted a decree.

In her answer, Mrs. Lemke denies charges made in her husband's complaint. She insists she never was cruel to him, though she admits several times she was obliged to defend herself against his assaults, on slaughters and insults.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 30.—One thousand feet of the Reading railroad tracks through Clark's Valley were washed out today when Stoney Creek went on a rampage, flooding farms and destroying numerous bridges.

The water reached a depth of 20 feet in the lowlands and isolated the town of Singerville, a village of 500 population. The water was rising hourly and is threatening to wash away the large Walkenmyer Dam and the Dauphin Dam which furnishes the water supply for the village of Dauphin.

Scores of summer cottages along the creek were under water.

LIQUOR RAIDS NEAR BEMIDJI NET BIG HAUL

EIGHT MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

1,550 GALLONS OF MASH, 9 STILLS AND BEER AND MOON SEIZED

E. G. Boyd, Indian agent mentioned in this article, was formerly stationed in Brainerd. Special Agent George Reardon resides near Gull Lake.

(From Bemidji Daily Pioneer)

One thousand five hundred and fifty gallons of mash, 90 gallons of moonshine, 539 bottles of beer, nine stills and eight men, that is the total result of a series of seizures made last week by Sheriff Julius R. Johnson's force, Indian Officer E. G. Boyd, formerly of Bemidji, Special Agent George Reardon and Chief of Police Louis V. Larson. Samples of the moonshine and beer were kept for evidence, the men were placed under arrest and the balance of the net result was destroyed.

The sheriff's force and the special agents last Tuesday visited the John Buelow farm near the Mississippi river bridge on the Cass lake road and there found a 30-gallon still, some moonshine and four barrels of mash. Buelow was arraigned before Judge C. W. Stanton Friday and pleaded guilty to the charges brought against him. He was given a fine of $100 and a 60-day jail sentence.

On Thursday the same force visited the Chas. Lausche farm in Brook Lake township. Here they confiscated a 40-gallon still, 150 gallons of moonshine, seven cases of beer in pint bottles and 101 quart bottles of beer. Later in the same day at the Ben Kemmer place they got two 30-gallon stills, fifteen 52-gallon barrels of mash, 45 gallons of moonshine, 140 quart bottles of beer.

Sheriff Johnson, the special officers and Chief of Police Larson visited the G. Rucher farm near Bemidji Friday. They found a dug-out about three hundred yards from the house and in it a wash boiler still, 400 gallons of mash, one gallon of moonshine and the other paraphernalia necessary to the manufacture of liquor. That same day this party went into the hills near this place and came across a dug-out distillery in the woods in which they found a wash boiler still in operation and two other stills which were not then in use. There were 550 gallons of mash here, eight gallons of moonshine and the other necessary tools and implements used in making moonshine. The officers took three men into custody there.

Moose Lake township was visited Saturday and on the premises of E. L. Copperrill there was found a copper wash boiler still, 24 gallons of moonshine, several mash barrels, jugs, bottles, etc.

The several parties apprehended last week were to be arraigned at 1:30 this afternoon before Court Commissioner D. H. Fisk, where it was believed most of them would enter pleas of guilty to the charges which would be brought against them.

George Ridley was named chairman of a boxing carnival soon to be planned and presented.

An indoor carnival was discussed, many pertinent suggestions being made by Captain William H. Fawcett who proffered his aid to make it a money maker.

A Thanksgiving entertainment planned was placed in the hands of W. J. Lyons and his co-workers, Bert Boynton, Kirk Smith, Wm. V. Turcotte, Earl O'Brien and Al Bromman.

IRONTON SPORTS CARNIVAL HELD

Civic Undertaking Was Successful Even Though the Weather Was Inclement

3000 PEOPLE PRESENT

3 Bands, Parade, Speaking, Football, Athletic Program, Dancing, Fireworks

Ironton's Sports Carnival on last Saturday, was very successful, even though the weather was inclement. It is estimated that about three thousand people were present, and enjoyed themselves to the limit in spite of the cold day and the rain.

The festivities started with a big parade at ten o'clock Saturday morning. Headed by the Coleraine band and over six blocks long, the parade covered both Ironton and Crosby. The Murphy Music Company's band held a position about the center of the parade and the Cuyuna Range band brought up the rear. There were many fine floats and a strong competition for the prizes. The Moose Heart Legion won first prize for the best decorated car, the American Legion second, and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Sandstrom third prize. Prizes were also given for the best decorated store windows.

Following the parade the address of welcome was given by R. L. Mayheu, president of the commercial club. Other speakers were W. O. Harper, of Minneapolis, and Hon. E. P. Scallon.

The football game in the afternoon between the high schools of Crosby-Ironton and Little Falls was a thriller from start to finish and ended in a tie score of 12 to 12. Foot races and other sports events that included a boxing exhibition furnished plenty of attraction.

Fireworks and dancing in the evening concluded the day's events, proving conclusively that such a fall festival can be successfully staged. It is possible that this may be made an annual affair in the future.

SHERIFF GOES STILL HUNTING

RAIDS IN THE FAR CORNER OF STEARNS COUNTY YIELD THREE STILLS

Sheriff Schoener of Stearns county made a foray into stilldom Friday in Brockway and St. Wendel townships and as a result three stills of about forty gallon capacity each are lying in the county jail today awaiting despoliation. Two men have been haled before Judge Alden and fined on nuisance counts as a result and the case of a third man will be heard late today.

The raids were made on complaint from residents of the section and in each case the sheriff had little difficulty in locating the still. Sam Kutz of St. Wendell was the first to receive a visit and some mash was found in addition to the still. He took the $50.00 option on an alternative sentence of the fine or sixty days in jail. Martin Kirsch of Brockway also pleaded guilty and was fined a similar amount. Joseph Pollock of Brockway was the third man arrested. His case will be heard late today. No liquor was found at either place.—St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press.

BOY SCOUTS' REGIONAL HEAD

H. F. Pote Arrived in Brainerd to Assist Local Council in Its Plans For Season

TO SPEAK TO ROTARY, LIONS

As Regional Executive Has Charge of Minnesota, North and South Dakota

H. F. Pote, regional executive of the National Boy Scout council, arrived in Brainerd this morning, to assist the local council in perfecting its plans for the coming season. He spoke at the Rotary club luncheon this noon, and will address the Lions club on Wednesday evening.

As regional executive Mr. Pote is in charge of Region No. 10, comprising the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota. He states that Scouting in this area is receiving added impetus, and that the movement is enjoying a very healthy growth, with excellent prospects for the future.

A program has been outlined covering the next three years, which is calculated to bring every small town troop under first-class leadership. This means that there will be a paid executive in the field assisting each troop.

Only last week, says Mr. Pote, Winona began an extension of its council territory to cover six counties, and to include the cities of Red Wing and Rochester, so that their executive may assist in a broader field and serve more troops.

On Monday evening, Mr. Pote met with the Fargo, N. D. council, at which time an organization was begun on a four-county project, three counties in North Dakota and one in Minnesota, to be under the supervision of the Fargo council, and intended to extend the scope of its work to the smaller towns in these counties.

Mr. Pote hopes that it will be possible in the extension of the Scouting work around Brainerd that the towns of Staples, Little Falls, Aitkin and the Cuyuna range may be organized under one head, with Brainerd as the center. He feels that this plan would make a strong organization, and that the finances could be worked out proportionately in a manner satisfactory to all concerned.

JIGGS AND MAGGY

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" Again Packs the New Park Theatre

For the third time in the past eleven months Jiggs and Maggy packed the New Park theatre on Monday evening, their latest offering being "Bringing Up Father in Ireland."

Beautiful costumes, brilliant electrical effects and gorgeous scenery, together with a Ziegfeld ball-t, peppy songs and excellent dancing, made this musical comedy much the best of the three "Bringing Up Father" shows that have played Brainerd.

A number of the cast supported Jiggs in his two former appearances at the New Park, but the plot, the songs, the dancing and the brilliant comedy are all new and original, and made a decided hit with the audience.

The theme of the production, of course, centers around Jiggs, Maggie and their daughter Kitty, who appeared to have stepped out of the colored Sunday supplements just for this one occasion. All of the characters, including Dinty Moore, were taken from George McManus' cartoon comedies, and the faithful portrayal of their parts contributed much to the success of the play.

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" consisted of two acts containing six scenes. The play opens in the garden of Killarney castle, and the audience is taken from Erin to Spain Jiggs making this trip as a stow-away. The comedy makes a jump from the streets of Seville to a Turkish harem and back, and closes in the castle of Rio Del Puero, where everything ends very happily.

E. J. Carpenter, the owner of the production, was with the company at its appearance in Brainerd, and expressed himself as delighted with the reception that the play was accorded and hopes to return to the city with his next offering.

The Inevitable Remark

Fresh and Lovely as a Morning Glory is a Dress in Pale Shades of Rose and Orchid Over a Slip of Flesh-Colored Crepe—One of the Late Styles in Chiffon Printed in Garden-Flower Pattern Is Introduced in a Midsummer Gown.

Dainty Fabric Is in Milady's Favor

Organdie, Dotted Swiss, Muslin and Other Materials, Fashion Leaders.

There was once a homely saying that in France the rustle of a petticoat meant silk. In other countries starch. That, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, was before the days when silk petticoats, silk frocks and stockings became as common as they had once been rare, and before people of a sturdier standard and those of lighter type had been harmonized by cosmopolitan fashions. This popular notion has since swept French and American styles to a similar conclusion, which is that muslin frocks belong to Americans, and that they are out of date, their crisp frilliness dimmed by the luster of French silk and tissues.

The muslin frock in all its sheer freshness and its many variants has been for generations the American woman's charming own, dainty, coquettish, eternally feminine; and many a woman of fashion of the older regime has regretted that her granddaughter could not know the pleasure of dressing in flowered "French" organdie, dotted swiss, hook muslin, or the smooth, cool linen lawns. They were the accepted summer dress, as much for town as for country wear.

The muslin frock disappeared with the muslin girl. Athletics, the motor-car, sports, life in the open, made demand for simpler lines, more substantial fabrics and much of the homespun idea for day wear. Once the new silhouette was established, the picture changed, and the muslin girl became the tailored girl, mannish, severe, dashing, "top style" for the vigorous day, and the chiffon girl for the evening.

Flannels, twills, heavy linens and loose-woven silks, treated much as the tailor employs stuffs for men's wear, have been for a dozen years the proper thing for informal occasions, while for dressy times all the newest weaves in starchless voiles, crepes, chiffons, marquisettes, silks, satins and brocades were required. The ruffled muslin passed with the crinoline, the floppy heghorn, lace mitts and long curls. The new version is a picture of slim body, athletic limb, curveless bodice and classic draperies.

The American vision was lost and the Parisian pattern was copied to all of the extremes, with many extravagant indulgences in exotic phases of foreign influence. All of the effect of artistry has been experienced within a season, and gradually but unmistakably the quaint styles in dress and accessories have been coming into view. Costume affairs in fashionable society and exhibitions of artistic costuming in studios and in the theater have recalled to the older and shown to the younger generation the beauty, the romance and the tradition in dress characteristic of ourselves, and couturiers have been alert in responding to the suggestion.

Winsome New Materials.

No season within merchants' memory has brought out a greater number of original styles in new materials. The woman who is able to gratify her desire in this summer's wardrobe has a bewildering collection from which to choose. Simplicity more simple than ever before is the keynote, especially in the handsomest evening gowns seen at smart affairs on the other side, the conspicuous attraction being in the goods of the dress. Trimming on these formal gowns is of exceptional richness; ostrich, which retains its intense popularity, and metal lace and embroidery, each sparingly and effectively used on flat surfaces.

The frock that answers the purpose of the old-time sheer muslin is of crepe, designated by many names—voile, printed silk, marquisette, chiffon in ever so many grades—all of which have been seen in the early season's models. These are built for the most part on complex plans, though the latest importations illustrate many new features, indicating quite plainly the direction in which the fashion tide will set at the opening of the coming season.

The printed crepes and silks are very modish in the straight tunic over a close skirt of contrasting color, or outlined with a band of plain goods. This model, for which the woman of the slender silhouette has a passion, is particularly happy when done in the silks of bold pattern, notably the conventional palm leaf and the other designs that are among this year's novelties.

In the draped models there is a following of whims and moods, with the fullness drawn forward to the front, to be caught directly in the middle front, hanging lower than the hem of the gown, and with founces, straight or circular; godets, scarf draperies, sashes, girdles and plaited or flaring skirts. Apparently several styles, greatly diversified, are being presented, as if to sense in advance the popular choice and establish a mode.

All of these and other designs are attractively shown in models of much originality and style, demonstrating the values of the new materials. For the one-piece or tunic frock for morning and all-day utility the eponge in cotton or silk or a mixture, made in checks, stripes and plain goods, is a novelty that has taken rather strongly. Ratine, in silk, cotton or silk and wool, is another new weave, rough in finish, loosely woven and smart, especially when it is made into a sports or beach frock.

Rich Formal Gowns.

In the more formal gowns the embroidered silks and flat crepes, embroidered solid, are exceedingly handsome, and are so costly that one such creation in a wardrobe is cherished and reserved for gala occasions. Bengaline, all silk, or silk and wool, is another revival of an old-time favorite, of which some stunning French models are built, with simplicity of lines, soft, scant drapery and a splash, a band or motif of colorful needlework. These are charming in the gentle shades, beige, maize, gray, powder blue, against which the crepe is much used in peasant embroidery make a striking note.

Reverting to the sheer frock, the up-to-date version of the organdie, there are new voiles of gossamer lightness, on which are printed the most enchanting patterns of flowers, butterflies, birds and many another fantasy. These have something of the sheer beauty of organdie but lack stiffness and may be beautifully draped or bunched, though the elaborate designs are shown to best advantage when they are gathered or slightly draped.

The qualifying appellation of "chiffon" is attached to many of the latest types of thin dress goods. There are chiffon voile, crepe chiffon, chiffon cloth and chiffon. Some are printed in delicate, beautifully colored patterns; some are plain or shaded in rainbow tints or gradations of one color.

Flock dot muslin is really a dotted swiss, woven in many "wash colors," and the English prints are the real novelty of the year. These are in prim, modest patterns, invariably small and geometric, in black and white, gray and white, violet or blue and white, scarlet and beige. Their being hand-blocked is a guarantee of the durability of their colors.

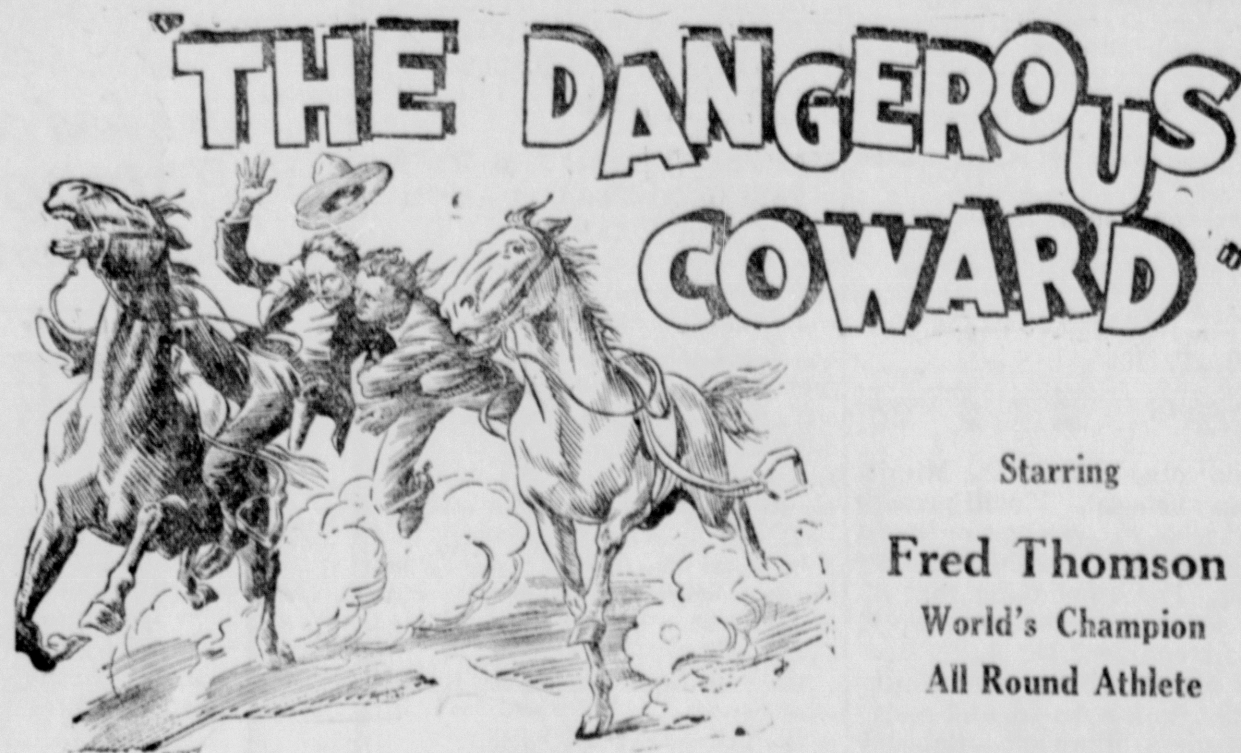

The craze for hand-blocked, indelibly printed cottons is well illustrated in the India prints, which are sold by the yard and might easily be mistaken for curtains or bed coverings. They are oriental in pattern and riotous in colors blended and assorted with the canny skill of an ancient art. Some of these are reproductions of the printed spreads and hangings which several of the more important shops have imported, and they are unique and amusing as dress makings.

In at least a score of years there has not been more beauty and artistic value in dress materials and design than this season has presented.

NORTHERN PACIFIC REPORTS A GAIN IN RAILWAY EARNINGS

GREAT WESTERN IS ALSO IN THE FAVORED CLASS

OUTLOOK IN RAIL SITUATION LOOKS TO BE BRIGHT

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—Northern Pacific and Great Western are the only northwest railroads to show an increase in August net earnings as compared with August, 1923.

This was revealed today with the publications of the monthly statement of revenues and expenses submitted to the interstate commerce commission.

The decrease of net operating income is largely due to the fact that August, 1923, was a bumper year for most of the lines, it was explained.

With a net of $1,429,000 the Northern Pacific showed an increase of $215,186, the statement shows, making a total for the eight months of $7,677,169, which is an increase of nearly $2,000,000 compared with last year.

This is one of the best showings made by the Northern Pacific and is explained by the more efficient and economical operation of the lines.

Although the railway operating revenues of $7,631,971 showed a decrease of $1,029,366 the operating expenses decreased in proportion. The operating ratio was reduced 4 per cent.

Despite the decrease in earnings of other railroads business for the next four months will be better, railroad officials said.

The operating revenues of the Great Northern for August were $8,925,454, compared with $11,011,227 for August, 1923, a decrease of $2,085,772. The net railway operating income was $1,603,211, a decrease of $1,402,588.

An important point to remember is that August, 1923, was an unusually heavy August and August, 1924, compares more nearly with that month in 1921 and 1922," Pres. Ralph Budd said.

"The Great Northern made very heavy expenditures for maintenance of equipment in August, 1924, which did not need to be made except in preparations for the heavy fall business, which then was looming large as the crops matured."

"Great Northern business should be relatively better for the last four months of the year, although the ore business will be much lighter than it was last year as will also the fruit business, as the western apple crop was hard hit by frost the first of May."

Great Northern's net income for the eight months was given as $9,325,191, a decrease of $441,775.

The net operating income of the Omaha was $292,121 for August, which is a decrease of $11,222 compared with August, 1923. The revenues for the month amounted to $2,314,406 with operating expenses of $1,843,123, each representing a decrease of nearly $250,000.

The eight-month period showed only a decrease of $1,762 compared with the corresponding period last year.

Great Western's net was $298,217 compared with $68,862 for last year. This was largely due to the $225,714 reduction in operating expenses. The net for the eight months amounted to $1,025,128, an increase of $105,104.

With the grain and fruit crops harvested September business will be one of the heaviest on record and the following months will show material increases, traffic experts said. August always has been a dull month for northwest railroads with the last four showing the largest amount of business.—St. Paul Daily News.

BOY SCOUTS' REGIONAL HEAD

H. F. Pote Arrived in Brainerd to Assist Local Council in Its Plans For Season

TO SPEAK TO ROTARY, LIONS

As Regional Executive Has Charge of Minnesota, North and South Dakota

H. F. Pote, regional executive of the National Boy Scout council, arrived in Brainerd this morning, to assist the local council in perfecting its plans for the coming season. He spoke at the Rotary club luncheon this noon, and will address the Lions club on Wednesday evening.

As regional executive Mr. Pote is in charge of Region No. 10, comprising the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota. He states that Scouting in this area is receiving added impetus, and that the movement is enjoying a very healthy growth, with excellent prospects for the future.

A program has been outlined covering the next three years, which is calculated to bring every small town troop under first-class leadership. This means that there will be a paid executive in the field assisting each troop.

Only last week, says Mr. Pote, Winona began an extension of its council territory to cover six counties, and to include the cities of Red Wing and Rochester, so that their executive may assist in a broader field and serve more troops.

On Monday evening, Mr. Pote met with the Fargo, N. D. council, at which time an organization was begun on a four-county project, three counties in North Dakota and one in Minnesota, to be under the supervision of the Fargo council, and intended to extend the scope of its work to the smaller towns in these counties.

Mr. Pote hopes that it will be possible in the extension of the Scouting work around Brainerd that the towns of Staples, Little Falls, Aitkin and the Cuyuna range may be organized under one head, with Brainerd as the center. He feels that this plan would make a strong organization, and that the finances could be worked out proportionately in a manner satisfactory to all concerned.

JIGGS AND MAGGY

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" Again Packs the New Park Theatre

For the third time in the past eleven months Jiggs and Maggie packed the New Park theatre on Monday evening, their latest offering being "Bringing Up Father in Ireland."

Beautiful costumes, brilliant electrical effects and gorgeous scenery, together with a Ziegfeld ballet, peppy songs and excellent dancing, made this musical comedy much the best of the three "Bringing Up Father" shows that have played Brainerd.

A number of the cast supported Jiggs in his two former appearances at the New Park, but the plot, the songs, the dancing and the brilliant comedy are all new and original, and made a decided hit with the audience.

The theme of the production, of course, centers around Jiggs, Maggie and their daughter Kitty, who appeared to have stepped out of the colored Sunday supplements just for this one occasion. All of the characters, including Dinty Moore, were taken from George McManus' cartoon comedies, and the faithful portrayal of their parts contributed much to the success of the play.

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" consisted of two acts containing six scenes. The play opens in the garden of Killarney castle, and the audience is taken from Erin to Spain Jiggs making this trip as a stow-away. The comedy makes a jump from the streets of Seville to a Turkish harem and back, and closes in the castle of Rio Del Fuego, where everything ends very happily.

E. J. Carpenter, the owner of the production, was with the company at its appearance in Brainerd, and expressed himself as delighted with the reception that the play was accorded and hopes to return to the city with his next offering.

Ratine, in silk, cotton or silk and wool, is another new weave, rough in finish, loosely woven and smart, especially when it is made into a sports or beach frock.

Rich Formal Gowns.

In the more formal gowns the embroidered silks and flat crepes, embroidered solid, are exceedingly handsome, and are so costly that one such creation in a wardrobe is cherished and reserved for gala occasions. Bengaline, all silk, or silk and wool, is another revival of an old-time favorite, of which some stunning French models are built, with simplicity of lines, soft, scant drapery and a splash, a band or motif of colorful needlework. These are charming in the gentle shades, beige, maize, gray, powder blue, against which the crests so much used in peasant embroidery make a striking note.

Reverting to the sheer frock, the up-to-date version of the organdie, there are new voiles of gossamer lightness, on which are printed the most enchanting patterns of flowers, butterflies, birds and many another fantasy. These have something of the sheer beauty of organdie but lack stiffness and may be beautifully draped or flounced, though the elaborate designs are shown to best advantage when they are gathered or slightly draped.

The qualifying appellation of "chiffon" is attached to many of the latest types of thin dress goods. There are chiffon voile, crepe chiffon, chiffon cloth and chiffon. Some are printed in delicate, beautifully colored patterns; some are plain or shaded in rainbow tints or gradations of one color.

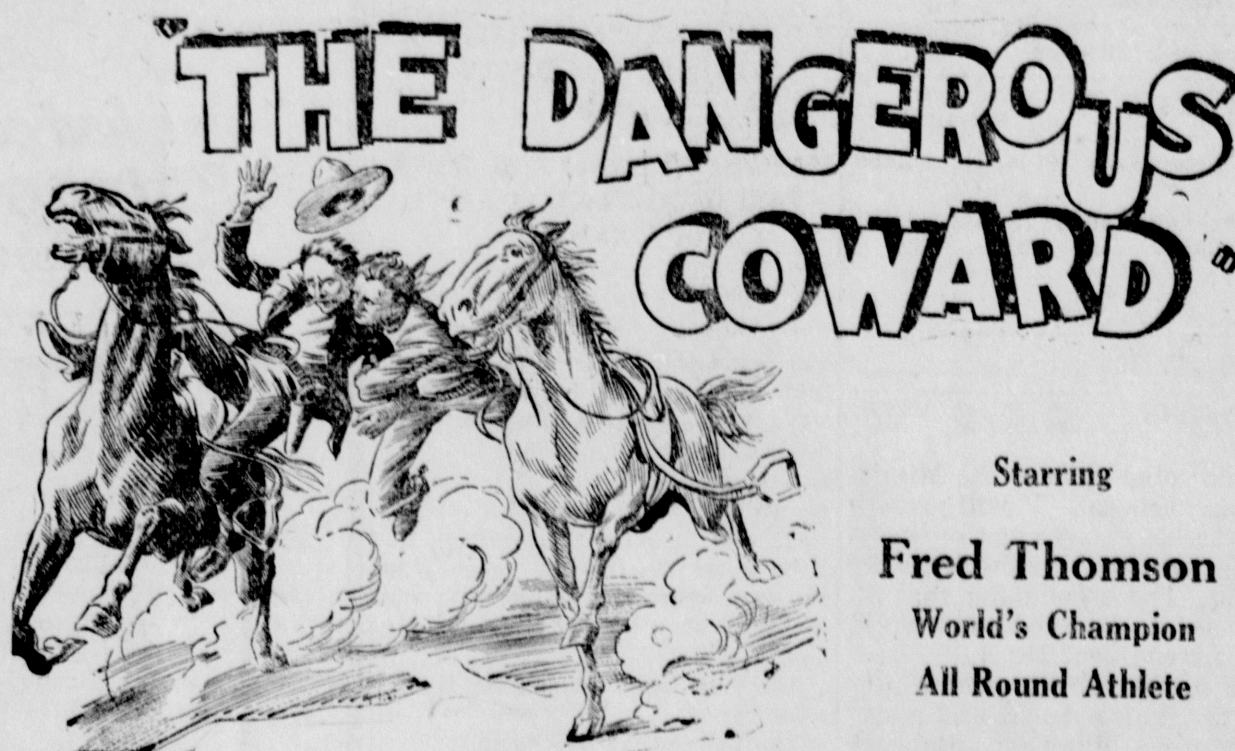

Flock dot muslin is really a dotted swiss, woven in many "wash colors," and the English prints are the real novelty of the year. These are in prim, modest patterns, invariably small and geometric, in black and white, gray and white, violet or blue and white, scarlet and beige. Their being hand-blocked is a guarantee of the durability of their colors.

The craze for hand-blocked, indelibly printed cottons is well illustrated in the India prints, which are sold by the yard and might easily be mistaken for curtains or bed coverings. They are oriental in pattern and riotous in colors blended and assorted with the canny skill of an ancient art. Some of these are reproductions of the printed spreads and hangings which several of the more important shops have imported, and they are unique and amusing as dress makings.

In at least a score of years there has not been more beauty and artistic value in dress materials and design than this season has presented.

NORTHERN PACIFIC REPORTS A GAIN IN RAILWAY EARNINGS

GREAT WESTERN IS ALSO IN THE FAVORED CLASS

OUTLOOK IN RAIL SITUATION LOOKS TO BE BRIGHT

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—Northern Pacific and Great Western are the only northwest railroads to show an increase in August net earnings as compared with August, 1923.

This was revealed today with the publications of the monthly statement of revenues and expenses submitted to the interstate commerce commission.

The decrease of net operating income is largely due to the fact that August, 1923, was a bumper year for most of the lines, it was explained. With a net of $1,426,000 the Northern Pacific showed an increase of $215,186, the statement shows, making a total for the eight months of $7,677,169, which is an increase of nearly $2,000,000 compared with last year.

This is one of the best showings made by the Northern Pacific and is explained by the more efficient and economical operation of the lines.

Although the railway operating revenues of $7,631,971 showed a decrease of $1,029,366 the operating expenses decreased in proportion. The operating ratio was reduced 4 per cent.

Despite the decrease in earnings of other railroads business for the next four months will be better, railroad officials said.

The operating revenues of the Great Northern for August were $8,925,454, compared with $11,011,297 for August, 1923, a decrease of $2,085,742. The net railway operating income was $1,693,211, a decrease of $1,402,588.

An important point to remember is that August, 1923, was an unusually heavy August and August, 1924, compares more nearly with that month in 1921 and 1922," Pres. Ralph Budd said.

The Great Northern made very heavy expenditures for maintenance of equipment in August, 1924, which did not need to be made except in preparations for the heavy fall business, which then was looming large as the crops matured.

"Great Northern business should be relatively better for the last four months of the year, although the ore business will be much lighter than it was last year as will also the fruit business, as the western apple crop was hard hit by frost the first of May."

Great Northern's net income for the eight months was given as $9,325,191, a decrease of $441,775.

The net operating income of the Omaha was $292,121 for August, which is a decrease of $11,222 compared with August, 1923. The revenues for the month amounted to $2,314,406 with operating expenses of $1,843,123, each representing a decrease of nearly $250,000.

The eight-month period showed only a decrease of $1,762 compared with the corresponding period last year.

Great Western's net was $298,217 compared with $68,862 for last year. This was largely due to the $225,714 reduction in operating expenses. The net for the eight months amounted to $1,025,128, an increase of $105,104.

With the grain and fruit crops harvested September business will be one of the heaviest on record and the following months will show material increases, traffic experts said. August always has been a dull month for northwest railroads with the last four showing the largest amount of business.—St. Paul Daily News.

THE GAS TAX QUESTION

AMENDMENT NO. 1 on the list to be voted upon at the Minnesota election in November is the gas tax proposal. It will present simply the question of whether the proceeds from a tax on gasoline, when collected in this state, shall be placed in the highway fund or go for general state expenses. Those believing that all motor vehicle tax revenue should be used for needed road work, of course, will vote "yes" on Gas Tax Amendment No. 1.

As is generally known, Minnesota motor vehicle owners now are paying all direct taxes levied for the improvement and maintenance of the big 7,000-mile system of main highways—Babcock roads—serving four out of five road users. The real question raised in the gas tax amendment is that of whether the cars and trucks shall be taxed also for other purposes.

Every dollar of public revenue derived from motor vehicles under present Minnesota laws should be placed in the highway fund. That is only due the representative citizens who are paying the bills for trunk route improvement and upkeep. It is true that they are paying lower taxes than are the auto owners of average states, but nevertheless, they should not be asked contribute in addition to the expense of other state activities. Put into needed highway betterments, their money will yield greatest returns to the car and truck owners and to the state as well.

The question of whether a gas tax shall be levied or whether it shall be an additional tax for the state legislature and not for the voters to decide. Three fourths of the states now have the gas tax and others are falling into line. Minnesota travelers on highways in other states must pay "road rent" under it. But the thousands of motor tourists coming yearly are escaping it here. In fairness to itself, and incidentally to gain upwards of $500,000 new revenue annually from an outside source, Minnesota will be forced to follow the lead.

So it seems to be the thing for every man and woman to vote "yes" on the gas tax. It probably will be levied here, and the amendment should be adopted to place the receipts in the road fund where they rightfully belong. No doubt the owners of some 500,000 cars and trucks can be entrusted to look to that in their own interests, but it is up to other citizens to swell the favorable vote.

MEDILL McCORMICK COMING

MEDILL McCORMICK, U. S. senator of Illinois, will speak in Brainerd on Friday, October 10. It should be made a great occasion in Brainerd and the range. The McCormick estate is deeply interested in Crow Wing county, owning mineral fee lands, mines, etc.

Chicago is some distance from Brainerd, but the large city has many companies and individuals interested in our Crow Wing county. Chicago sportsmen come here in the fall, Chicago summer resorters spend their leisure hours at our lakes and motor on our highways.

McCormick is connected with the Chicago Tribune, considered one of the greatest daily papers in the world. It behooves all of Brainerd and the county to turn out on the evening of October 10th and hear what the senator of Illinois has to say in this campaign.

McCormick gives first hand knowledge. An inveterate traveler, he knows America and Europe intimately. He knows industry and he knows the common people. He gives out no half-baked opinions, no hearsay stuff. He knows his subject. He can handle the English language so you get the drift of his ideas on the first shot. He drives home his point quickly and clearly.

When he comes to Brainerd, he's not rapping on the front door as a mere stranger. He pays taxes right in our county and he's a friend of Crow Wing county.

IT PROVED THREE THINGS

THE Dawes meeting in St. Cloud Friday evening proved three things, says the Little Falls Daily Transcript.

First, that General Dawes had a message to deliver, and did so in no uncertain language in less than forty minutes. He was brief and to the point. He did not tire his audience.

Second, that the ovation given Congressman Knutson was evidence of the popularity of the sixth district congressman in his home county. The congressman made a short address, which, like that of the principal speaker of the evening, contained some real constructive thoughts and which were loudly applauded.

Third, that St. Cloud has learned the method of handling large crowds.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS PRAISED

AMERICAN progress is speeded by the newspapers, especially the smaller ones, says Harrison Boyce, the inventor of the motor and boyce-it, a fuel ingredient. Boyce had paid a great tribute to the medium and smaller newspapers by stating that collectively they have a greater influence on American thought and progress than a few large papers in the large cities.

The medium and smaller papers take more independent stands, they are not controlled as much by advertising patronage. As asserted by Mr. Boyce, they constitute the great mass of important newspaper circulation. They are generally very carefully read, front to back, and have a strong and intimate personal interest for the reader.

THE Stillwater Gazette, says the Bemidji Pioneer, in calling attention to the difficulty of conducting a band in the state prison, notes that the members of that musical organization are always behind a few bars. But they should never lack for a man to play the drum as any of the inmates would be glad to take a drum and beat it.

BANKERS feel the financial pulse of the nation. At their meeting in Chicago, 8,000 members of the American Bankers association breathed a spirit of optimism.

PARLIAMENT

RECONVENES
IN BRITAIN

HIGHLY CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECTS UP FOR DISCUSSION

MAY EASILY RESULT IN DOWNFALL OF MAC DONALD LABOR GOVERNMENT

(By United Press)
London, Sept. 30.—Parliament reconvened after the summer vacation, and legislators plunged immediately into a number of highly controversial subjects, any one of which might easily cause the downfall of the MacDonald labor government. It being merely the resumption of a session, there was no formal opening by the King or speech from the Throne, but the rush of legislators for seats was as big as on a normal state opening day.

The four major subjects for discussion are:

The Ulster boundary dispute,
The Anglo-Russian treaty,
Unemployment, and
The Dawes plan and the German loan.

The Ulster question is down for tackling first, and so bitter will be the fight over this, that the other questions may never be reached, in the life of the present Parliament.

It was owing to the acuteness of the Irish dispute that Parliament had to be content with a bare seven weeks' recess instead of resuming the session the end of October or November—and the curtailment of their normal vacation, needed for consolidation of their position in their own constituencies, has not improved the tempers of legislators.

President Cosgrave, however, had intimated very definitely that he could not answer for developments in the Irish Free State if the boundary dispute was allowed to drag over the Irish elections and the British government decided to tackle the question at once.

The Ulster Dispute

The present Ulster dispute rages around the interpretation of Article 12 of the treaty signed November, 1921, by Lloyd George, and other coalition leaders, and Michael Collins and the Irish plenipotentiaries. This article provided for the setting up of a boundary commission to delimit the borders of the Free State and Ulster, which was to be composed of one representative each from the Free State and Ulster, with an independent chairman appointed by the British government.

The MacDonald government appointed Justice Feetham, a distinguished South African judge, as chairman and the Free State appointed its representative, but Ulster flatly declined to take any step in the matter at all, or to recognize the findings of the commission.

The Contention

Ulster's contention was that she was not a party to the 1921 Treaty, and that as her borders were delimited by the Act of Parliament, passed 12 months previously, conferring self-government on the six-country area now known as the Government of Northern Ireland, nothing could be done without her consent. Premier Sir James Craig after conferences with the late President Arthur Griffith, the late Michael Collins, and President Cosgrave, intimated that Ulster would not oppose minor, technical, boundary rectifications, but that he gathered from utterances of Southern Irish leaders, that the Free Staters expected to obtain the city of Londonderry and three of Ulster's six counties, out of the boundary commission.

To such a claim he gave a flat "Nothing doing," and declined to appoint an Ulster representative on the Commission, as Ulster—and the British Conservative signatories to the 1921 Treaty insisted that only minor, administrative and geographical boundary rectifications were contemplated by the clause.

The Free State View

The Free State leaders took the view that failure to set up the Boundary Commission would be a flagrant breach of the Treaty and pressed for action, wherefore, just before Parliament adjourned for the summer recess, Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas introduced a government bill authorizing the British government to appoint the third commissioner and to get the Boundary Commission started.

This was read a first time, and the second reading is scheduled for this week, and it will be opposed tooth and nail by the conservative party, and it is believed, by some Liberals. Lloyd George, as author of the Irish Treaty, promised Premier MacDonald Liberal support to pass the bill

Anglo-Russian Treaty

An equally serious snag is the Anglo-Russian treaty, signed the day after Parliament rose, but which must lay on the table of the House of Commons for 21 days—and come up for serious debate—before it is ratified. Only a vote of Parliament can ratify the treaty, because, for some extraordinary reason—much criticized by its opponents—the name of the King is not mentioned in the document, so King George cannot be called upon to ratify it over Parliament's head.

The Treaty which promises government support for a Russian loan, is so vague and suggests such little corresponding advantage to Britain that it was vehemently opposed by men of all parties. Practically only the extremists in the Labor ranks support the measure and according to reliable observers, there is scarcely a chance in the world that Parliament will pass it. Rejection of the Russian Treaty would be such a blow to MacDonald's prestige that he could hardly do anything but resign, according to parliamentary experts, but but it has since become clear that he cannot carry all British Liberals with him. Men like Sir Alfred Mond, formerly regarded as Lloyd George's chief lieutenant, Ian Macpherson, former Liberal Secretary for Ireland—who was in charge of the bill granting Ulster self-government in 1920—have said plainly that they will not support the measure if the Free State expects to dismember Ulster. They said that the British signatories only intended minor border rectifications, and that an official acceptance of this view by the Free State leaders alone will remove their opposition. The Conservatives, who always hated the Treaty, and in fact, deposed Austen Chamberlain, the Earl of Birkenhead, and others from the party leadership, for signing it, naturally strenuously oppose any suggestion of handing over large tracts of Ulster to the Free State. They contend that Ulster's borders were fixed by a previous law, and nothing more than minor rectifications can be permitted, and then only with Ulster's consent.

Lords Would Reject

Until the dissentient Liberals cast their vote it is impossible to say whether the MacDonald government can pass the bill through Commons, but if it goes through the lower House, it is practically certain to be rejected by the House of Lords.

Premier MacDonald will then be faced with the alternative of resignation, or passive contemplation of civil war in Ireland. The general impression is that he will resign, if the bill is rejected and call a general election.

BATTLE OF BOYNE
INTO PARLIAMENT

London, Sept. 30.—The battle of the Boyne, century-old struggle between Protestant and Catholic over the boundary line between the north and south of Ireland, was carried into parliament today in a special session called by Prime Minister MacDonald.

The Irish Free State and Ulster having declined to agree between themselves on a settlement, Britain's labor government proposes to move a bill which will amend the Irish treaty and establish a boundary commission to settle the matter arbitrarily.

The MacDonald government appointed Justice Feetham, a distinguished South African judge, as chairman and the Free State appointed its representative, but Ulster flatly declined to take any step in the matter at all, or to recognize the findings of the commission.

The Contention

Ulster's contention was that she was not a party to the 1921 Treaty, and that as her borders were delimited by the Act of Parliament, passed 12 months previously, conferring self-government on the six-country area now known as the Government of Northern Ireland, nothing could be done without her consent. Premier Sir James Craig after conferences with the late President Arthur Griffith, the late Michael Collins, and President Cosgrave, intimated that Ulster would not oppose minor, technical, boundary rectifications, but that he gathered from utterances of Southern Irish leaders that the Free Staters expected to obtain the city of Londonderry and three of Ulster's six counties, out of the boundary commission.

To such a claim he gave a flat "Nothing doing," and declined to appoint an Ulster representative on the Commission, as Ulster—and the British Conservative signatories to the 1921 Treaty insisted that only minor, administrative and geographical boundary rectifications were contemplated by the clause.

The Free State View

The Free State leaders took the view that failure to set up the Boundary Commission would be a flagrant breach of the Treaty and pressed for action, wherefore, just before Parliament adjourned for the summer recess, Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas introduced a government bill authorizing the British government to appoint the third commissioner and to get the Boundary Commission started.

This was read a first time, and the second reading is scheduled for this week, and it will be opposed tooth and nail by the conservative party, and it is believed, by some Liberals. Lloyd George, as author of the Irish Treaty, promised Premier MacDonald Liberal support to pass the bill

but it has since become clear that he cannot carry all British Liberals with him. Men like Sir Alfred Mond, formerly regarded as Lloyd George's chief lieutenant, Ian Macpherson, former Liberal Secretary for Ireland—who was in charge of the bill granting Ulster self-government in 1920—have said plainly that they will not support the measure if the Free State expects to dismember Ulster. They said that the British signatories only intended minor border rectifications, and that an official acceptance of this view by the Free State leaders alone will remove their opposition. The Conservatives, who always hated the Treaty, and in fact, deposed Austen Chamberlain, the Earl of Birkenhead, and others from the party leadership, for signing it, naturally strenuously oppose any suggestion of handing over large tracts of Ulster to the Free State. They contend that Ulster's borders were fixed by a previous law, and nothing more than minor rectifications can be permitted, and then only with Ulster's consent.

Lords Would Reject

Until the dissentient Liberals cast their vote it is impossible to say whether the MacDonald government can pass the bill through Commons, but if it goes through the lower House, it is practically certain to be rejected by the House of Lords.

Premier MacDonald will then be faced with the alternative of resignation, or passive contemplation of civil war in Ireland. The general impression is that he will resign, if the bill is rejected and call a general election.

Anglo-Russian Treaty

An equally serious snag is the Anglo-Russian treaty, signed the day after Parliament rose, but which must lay on the table of the House of Commons for 21 days—and come up for serious debate—before it is ratified. Only a vote of Parliament can ratify the treaty, because, for some extraordinary reason—much criticized by its opponents—the name of the King is not mentioned in the document, so King George cannot be called upon to ratify it over Parliament's head.

The Treaty which promises government support for a Russian loan, is so vague and suggests such little corresponding advantage to Britain that it was vehemently opposed by men of all parties. Practically only the extremists in the Labor ranks support the measure and according to reliable observers, there is scarcely a chance in the world that Parliament will pass it. Rejection of the Russian Treaty would be such a blow to MacDonald's prestige that he could hardly do anything but resign, according to parliamentary experts, but the Premier might perhaps decide that fighting an election on the Russian question would not be good tactics, and so postpone the fatal step. However, he could not very well delay resignation on such a major defeat.

Unemployment

Unemployment will raise many troubles for the MacDonald Ministry, and falling drastic steps—which would doubtless be rejected by the combined oppositions—the government might well be thrown out by its own supporters.

The Dawes loan is another serious snag, for most of the opposition to it comes from the ranks of Labor itself. Trade Union leaders have made it clear that they regard the Dawes plan as a surrender to the capitalists, and with the Anti-German Conservatives gleefully assisting in this opposition—from entirely different motives—defeat stares MacDonald in the face, although the Dawes plan and London agreement does not need Parliamentary sanction.

BATTLE OF BOYNE INTO PARLIAMENT

London, Sept. 30.—The battle of the Boyne, century-old struggle between Protestant and Catholic over the boundary line between the north and south of Ireland, was carried into parliament today in a special session called by Prime Minister MacDonald.

The Irish Free State and Ulster having declined to agree between themselves on a settlement, Britain's labor government proposes to move a bill which will amend the Irish treaty and establish a boundary commission to settle the matter arbitrarily.

CONG. HILL PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

IN COURT CHARGED WITH VIOLATING VOLSTEAD ACT

CLAIMED HE HAD 2.75 PER CENT CIDER PARTY SEPTEMBER 20

(By United Press.) Baltimore, Md., Sept. 30.—Congressman John Philip Hill today pleaded not guilty to all counts in the indictment charging him with violation of the Volstead act as a result of his 2.75 per cent cider party here September 20.

Hill furnished bail for his appearance for trial, asking that the case be put forward so that a decision on the case may be reached before the election.

Judge Sopher refused the request, however, declaring the case cannot be tried before November.

"I do not propose to have this court for election purposes," the judge declared.

Hill forced his own arrest on the cider-making charge in an effort to get a ruling on the section of the Volstead act governing fermented fruit juices. He hopes to legalize the manufacture of beer and light wines through his efforts.

STATE MAY ESCAPE BIG FOREST FIRES

THERE IS PLENTY OF MOISTURE IN WOODS, SAYS GROVER M. CONZET

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—Minnesota may escape without a serious forest fire this fall.

This is indicated today, as the most dangerous period for forest fires starts, Grover M. Conzet, state forester, said, by the amount of moisture in the forests.

Conditions are better, he says, than in many years, due to the large amount of rain during the latter part of the summer, and the greater co-operation of settlers in the district.

If hunters will be careful now of their cigaret butts and campfires, he said, the chances are good that Minnesota will not have a single serious forest fire.

From the last of September until the last of October, Mr. Conzet said, is the time when most serious forest fires occur. There are two large peat fires burning now, but it is expected they will be out in about 10 days, Mr. Conzet said.

COUNTESS SALM IS MOTHER OF 8-POUND BOY

New York, Sept. 30.—A reminder of the runaway romance of Millicent Rogers and Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten wailed lustily at Miss Lippincott's private hospital here today, where "mother and son are doing well."

Presumably father is too, but he was left behind in Europe when Father Rogers went over after his remorseful daughter and brought her home.

The count has been advised of his fatherhood, but has not been invited to the christening and friends of the family say there will be no reconciliation.

It's a boy, eight pounds, and he looks like his father, Millicent said. Mrs. Rogers said she and the colonel were happy.

Millicent, $40,000,000 heiress, married Count Salm at the municipal building in New York city Jan. 9 of this year.

They went to Europe after the bride's father, Col. H. H. Rogers, declined to accept Ludwig and for a time danced in cabarets while the count wrote "How I wooed and won the $40,000,000 heiress" for a feature syndicate.

Then Col. Rogers went over and brought back his daughter. The baby came Sept. 27.

"Monte Blue in Her Marriage Vow"

Monte Blue's Rise From Ditch Digger to Popular Motion Picture Star

Popular Monte Blue only a few years ago was digging ditches at $1.50 a day, and dreaming of a chance to get into the movies. How the chance came and how he took advantage of it is told fully in this interesting article. Monte Blue has a leading role in "Her Marriage Vow," the screen adaptation of the Owen Davis novel, showing at the New Park tonight and Wednesday.)

Being more or less of a student and public speaker, he used to address the other laborers as a soap-box orator. One day he was waxing hot in a discussion about capital and labor, when he noticed one of his audience looking off behind him and smiling. Turning, he was surprised to see Mr. Griffith absorbed in listening to his subject.

In a short time, Monte Blue was brought before the director.

"How would you like to 'play a little part here?'" he asked.

"I would like it very much," replied Monte, realizing that his opportunity had arrived.

HARD COAL MINES FLOODED BY HEAVY RAIN

(By United Press.) Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 30.—Eighteen anthracite mines were flooded today as waters in this section began to rise from rains during the past 48 hours. A landslide over the tracks of the Lehigh Valley railroad at Hinkles was responsible for the derailing of a passenger engine. No one was injured. Washouts were reported all along the railroads and highways generally through this section.

Menace of Vesuvius Today as Yesterday

A queer life they must have lived in those little houses of Pompeii, whose rough masonry and stained patches of color were first created when Germany was a savage forest, Britain a moist land distant from civilization "the whole globe away," and America had never felt the tread of a shod foot. In the sunny courtyard the master dreams away the hot hours to the splash of the tiny fountain, listening to the sleepy gabble of his slaves from the rooms round the atrium. The rattle of the two-horsed chariots over the lava blocks of the street, the oaths of a driver who falls to negotiate the huge stones placed like massive policemen to regulate the traffic at the entrances to the crossroads, disturb his slumber, and he remembers the gladiators, "heroes of ten fights," when the aedile Pansa is to exhibit in the arena on the Nones of April. A dull roar, and a vertical column of pearl-white smoke, bellying out into fantastic shapes and floating majestically away on the light wind, shows him that Vesuvius is angry. He glances for reassurance to the picture of the Lares and the snake of fortune, painted on the wall of the entrance porch to avert ill-luck. No need to worry: it has always been like that and always will be.

It is like that today. The monster snorts fire and smoke innocuously into the blue sky. Visitors on sturdy ponies go fearlessly up to gaze into his black, evil-looking jaws. But will it always be like that? Or, when the last bucketful of cinders has been painfully sifted, and the last house cleared, will he again mock human labors and human hopes and cover all once more with dust raining from a lurid sky?—Washington Post.

Seek Treasure Under Sea

The harbor of ancient Carthage is to be thoroughly explored in search of treasure which is now definitely known to exist there, its presence having been revealed by observers in airplanes. For years the sponge divers in that vicinity have repeated stories about seeing an ancient galley reposing on the bottom, but the matter was never given any very serious attention. But from a height the bottom of the sea may be scanned very thoroughly and some aerial observations revealed the presence of a boat of ancient construction very clearly, and some preliminary examinations have shown that it is at least partially filled with valuable specimens of Greek art. Explorations on modern plans will be commenced at once and the cargo systematically recovered. The old harbor will be further searched for treasure ships which are known to have gone down during the Punic wars. In this work the airplane will play an important part.

Forman Sees Crime as Mental Ailment

Photoplay conventions of long standing are routed by Tom Forman the director of "The Girl Who Came Back," showing at the Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, when he shows a side of criminal nature that inspires sympathy and respect.

The film transference to the screen by Tom Forman of Charles Blaney's stage success of the same name, shows the finer side of the criminal nature, and scatters to the four winds the old notion that a criminal is a moral leper.

"My experience with actual hardened 'fallbirds' has convinced me that a criminal is only a sick man, with a disease of the mind instead of the body, and that science will one day find a cure for him," says the director.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

"Nor will that serve you," Ogle warned him, still more fiercely. "The men are of my making, and they'll have their way."

"You come to give advice, then, do you?" quoth Blood, relenting nothing of his sternness.

"That's it, Captain; advice. That girl, there." He flung out a bare arm to point to her. "Bishop's girl; the Governor of Jamaica's niece. We want her as a hostage for our safety."

"Aye!" roared in chorus the buccaners below.

"It's a providence having her aboard; a providence. Heave to, Captain, and signal them to send a boat, and assure themselves that Miss is here. Then let them know that if they attempt to hinder our sailing hence, we'll hang the doxy first and fight for it after. That'll cool Colonel Bishop's heat, maybe."

"And maybe it won't." Slow and mocking came Wolverstone's voice to answer the other's confident excitement, and as he spoke he advanced to Blood's side, an unexpected ally.

"If ye're counting on pulling Bishop's heartstrings, ye're a bigger fool, Ogle, than I've always thought you was. We've got to fight, my lads..."

"How can we fight, man?" Ogle stormed at him.

Then louder than before roared a gun away to leeward.

"They are within range," cried Ogle.

"Wait!" Blood bade him, interrupting, and he set a restraining hand upon the gunner's arm. "There is, I think, a better way. Mine is the safe and easy way. Put the helm down," he bade Pitt. "Heave her to, and signal to them to send a boat."

A silence of astonishment fell upon the ship—of astonishment and suspicion at this sudden yielding. Captain Blood turned and beckoned Lord Julian forward. Briefly and clearly he announced to all the object of Lord Julian's voyage to the Caribbean, and he informed them of the offer which yesterday Lord Julian had made to him.

"That offer I rejected. But now, outsailed, and likely to be outfought, as Ogle has said, I am ready to take the way of Morgan: to accept the King's commission and shelter us all behind it."

The main body of them welcomed the announcement as only men who have been preparing to die can welcome a new lease of life.

"No man need follow me into the King's service who is reluctant," Blood went on. "That is not in the bargain. What is in the bargain is that I accept this service with such of you as may choose to follow me. And even those of you who do not choose to follow me shall share the immunity of all, and shall afterwards be free to depart. Those are the terms upon which I sell myself to the King. Let Lord Julian, the representative of the Secretary of State, say whether he agrees to them."

Prompt, eager, and clear came his lordship's agreement. Meanwhile the boat signalled to the Jamaica ships to send a boat, and the men in the waist broke their ranks and went noisily flocking to line the bulwarks and view the great stately vessels that were racing down toward them. As Ogle left the quarter-deck, Blood turned, and came face to face with Miss Bishop. She set a hand lightly upon his arm.

"You have chosen wisely, sir," she commended him, "however much against your inclinations."

"I owed it to you—or thought I did," he said.

"Your resolve delivered me from a horrible danger," she admitted. "But I do not understand why you should have hesitated when first it was proposed to you. It is an honorable service."

"King James's?" he sneered.

"England's," she corrected him in reproof. "The country is all, sir; the sovereign naught. King James will pass; others will come and pass; England remains, to be honorably served by her sons, whatever rank they may hold against the man who rules her in their time."

"Shrewd advocacy," he approved it. "You should have spoken to the crew. Do you suppose now that this honorable service might redeem one who was a pirate and a thief?"

"If he needs redeeming. Perhaps... he has been judged too harshly."

"Why... if ye think that," he said, considering her, an odd hunger in his glance, "life might have its uses, after all, and even the service of King James might become tolerable. If you will go below, and get your gear and your woman, you shall presently be sent aboard one of the ships of the fleet."

She left him, and thereafter, with Wolverstone, leaning upon the rail he watched the approach of that boat, manned by a dozen sailors, and commanded by a scarlet figure seated stiffly in the stern sheets. The deputy proved to be an officer named Calverley.

His air, as he stepped into the waist of the Arabella, was haughty, truculent, and disdainful.

Blood, the King's commission now in his pocket, and Lord Julian standing beside him, waited to receive him, and Captain Calverley was a little taken aback at finding himself confronted by two men so very different outwardly from anything that he had expected.

"Good-day to you, sir," Blood hailed him pleasantly. "I have the honor to give you welcome aboard the Arabella. My name is Blood—Captain Blood, at your service. You may have heard of me."

"It's your surrender I require, my man, not your impudence," Calverley demanded. Captain Blood appeared surprised, pained. He turned in appeal to Lord Julian.

"D'ye hear that now? And did ye ever hear the like? But what did I tell ye? Ye see, the young gentleman's under a misapprehension entirely. Perhaps it'll save broken bones if your lordship explains just who and what I am."

"I have the honor to inform you, sir," he said stiffly, "that Captain Blood holds a commission in the King's service under the seal of my Lord Sunderland, His Majesty's Secretary of State."

"And who the devil may you be?"

"You're not very civil, sir, as I have already noticed. My name is Wade—Lord Julian Wade. I am His Majesty's envoy to these barbarous parts, and my Lord Sunderland's near kinsman. Colonel Bishop has been notified of my coming."

"I... I believe that he has," said Calverley, between doubt and suspicion. "That is: that he has been notified of the coming of Lord Julian Wade. But... but... aboard this ship...?"

"If Captain Blood will show you his commission, perhaps that will set all doubts at rest," concluded his lordship.

Captain Blood thrust a parchment under Calverley's bulging eyes.

"I must return to Colonel Bishop for my orders," he informed them.

At that moment a lane was opened in the ranks of the men, and through this came Miss Bishop, followed by her octoroon woman. Over his shoulder Captain Blood observed her approach.

"Perhaps, since Colonel Bishop is with you, you will convey his niece to him. Miss Bishop was aboard the Royal Mary, and I rescued her, together with his lordship. She will be able to acquaint her uncle with the details of that and of the present state of affairs."

"As for me," said Lord Julian, with intent to make Miss Bishop's departure free from all interference on the part of the buccaners, "I shall remain aboard the Arabella until we reach Port Royal. My compliments to Colonel Bishop. Say that I look forward to making his acquaintance there."

CHAPTER XIX
HOSTILITIES

In the great harbor of Port Royal the Arabella rode at anchor. Almost she had the air of a prisoner, for a quarter of a mile ahead, to starboard, rose the lofty, massive single round tower of the fort, whilst a couple of cables' length astern, and to larboard, rode the six men-of-war that composed the Jamaica squadron.

On a cane day-bed that had been set for him on the quarterdeck, sheltered from the dazzling, blistering sunshine by an improvised awning of brown sailcloth, lounged Peter Blood.

HIGHWAY USE JUMPS AS AUTOS MULTIPLY

ROAD DEMANDS INCREASE A THOUSAND-FOLD IN DECADE

Minnesota roads are being used now by nearly ten times as many vehicles as traveled ten years ago, and about ten times as much and ten times as hard. Minnesotans have nearly ten times as much invested in highway vehicles as they had ten years back.

While highway wear and tear has increased ten times ten times ten, or a thousand times over during the decade, the outlays for roads have been only a little more than doubled.

"We can't go on taking out without putting in accordingly, and what we don't put into needed road improvements must come out of our rigs," said Nickles N. Dimes, gas tax man, commenting on the foregoing facts and giving official figures to support them.

"The personal property tax rolls of 1914 listed automobiles, trucks, wagons, carriages, sleighs and other highway vehicles in Minnesota of $37,500,000 full value. The corresponding total now is more than $310,000,000—or nearly ten times as great. Present day vehicles weigh on the average ten times as much as those of ten years ago and they travel ten times as much.

"Think of the size of the Minnesota trunk highway system and the number of machines using it," continued the gas tax man. "There were registered up to a few days ago 492,528 motor vehicles, or enough to carry all the men and women and children in Minnesota in one loading. End to end they would make a line 1,300 miles long or from the west Minnesota line to the Atlantic seaboard. Yet they would have to be placed just six feet apart to cover the big 7,000-mile Minnesota trunk route system. Try to think of the work required to keep that big mileage of roads in condition under the constant battering of that tremendous number of cars and trucks, wagons and buggies beside.

"The legislator who said it is worth $12 of any car owner's money to have the privilege of using Minnesota roads was right and he might have said the annual motor vehicle tax, for it buys more for the car owner than any other money he spends.

"Moral—Vote 'yes' for the Gas Tax and yourself," said the gas tax man.

Queen Mary Sets The Knitted Vogue!

ONE of the shortest roads to chic now-a-days is by way of knitted outerwear. The smartest sets have taken it unto their hearts and into their wardrobes—even royalty is not immune to its allure. Its latest sponsor of note is Queen Mary, who has selected a variety of knitted costumes for her stay this fall at Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

This royal guidance of the mode, in combination with the brilliance and charm of the new knitted presentations, will, without doubt, be of most significance to milady in assessing her fall and winter wardrobe.

Knitted frocks and sweaters of soft brushed wools are almost necessities for cold weather comfort—but the newest knitted style note is to be found in the three-quarter and top coat offerings. Strikingly novel is a full length coat cut from a knitted fabric developed in an all-over silver and steel grey oblong pattern. Its luxurious collar and cuffs which simulate fur are in reality made of sheared or "bobbed" wool.

TO EXTEND OUR CITY DECORATION

American Legion Post Plans to Extend Plan to Residence Sections Too

FLAGS SOLD ACTUAL COST

Moderate Cost Involved, Sockets For Flags Placed in Curb or Walk

The American Legion post of Brainerd, is endeavoring to extend the scope of its permanent city decoration to include not only the business section, as it now does, but also the residence district.

Recently the local post concluded a campaign to place permanent sockets at the curb in front of every place of business downtown in which flagpoles with large flags attached may be inserted and the business section given patriotic decoration on very short notice.

So favorably has this plan been received that many citizens wish to have the same decorations for their residences, and the Legion has decided to order another supply of these flags and sockets for all who wish to install them at their homes.

This socket may be placed in the cement curb in front of the home, or in the cement sidewalk, as the individual desires and the conditions permit. A number have already placed their orders with the Legion, and it is hoped that all of Brainerd will adopt the plan.

The flags are sold by the Legion at actual cost, the price including the setting of the socket in the cement, and this price is so low that it is felt that all can afford to secure the decoration.

Those who have not as yet placed their order should do so at once, by telephoning to Albert A. Englund, 249-J. This should be done within the next few days, as the Legion wishes to order the flags at once and have them ready for use on Armistice Day, November 11th. It will be impossible for the members of the Legion to make a personal canvass of the city to secure these orders, so citizens are requested to telephone their orders within the next few days.

If this campaign throughout the residence district receives the same hearty support that the downtown section gave, Brainerd will present a very fine appearance on holidays and other prominent occasions.

Richard A. Anderson, whereabouts unknown, is wanted at the bedside of his mother who is very ill at Wausau, Wisconsin, and since he is an ex-service man, the American Legion is making an effort to find him.

In a letter to Kirk Smith, commander of the local post, Stafford King, state adjutant of the American Legion asks that Brainerd citizens lend a hand in locating Anderson.

The young man served as sergeant in the 89th division at Camp Funston and for two years overseas. He was last heard from at Brainerd two years ago.

Mr. Smith could not find the name in the latest city directory, nor has he been able to locate anyone who knew Anderson while he lived in Brainerd. He will appreciate any information relative to this case at a very early date, so that he may notify the mother who longs to see her son. American Legions in other cities throughout the state are also cooperating in the quest.

Those who have not as yet placed their order should do so at once, by telephoning to Albert A. Englund, 249-J. This should be done within the next few days, as the Legion wishes to order the flags at once and have them ready for use on Armistice Day, November 11th. It will be impossible for the members of the Legion to make a personal canvass of the city to secure these orders, so citizens are requested to telephone their orders within the next few days.

If this campaign throughout the residence district receives the same hearty support that the downtown section gave, Brainerd will present a very fine appearance on holidays and other prominent occasions.

DUNDEE MUST QUIT OR TAKE KNOCKOUT MASTER MIND

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 30.—Johnny Dundee, one-time featherweight and junior lightweight champion and one of the greatest little boxers that ever lived, will soon retire permanently from the ring unless he wants to stain his fine record with the final chapter on his back.

Dundee recently tossed his featherweight championship into the lap of the New York Boxing Commission and announced that he was no longer able to make the 128-pound limit. The little Italian ought to throw his gloves in now and admit that he is no longer able to fight.

The veteran of more than 350 professional fights, in none of which he had ever given anything but his best, burst out all of a sudden. He went as long as he could, doing things that no other boxer had done in the past, and he beat nature until nature would take no more beating.

Dundee, perhaps, was the most elastic fighter that ever lived. He fought featherweights, lightweights, welterweights and, if he had felt like it, he would have taken on middleweights. He could work himself down from 150 pounds to 128 pounds and go like a fighting machine. No one could understand how he did it, but everyone agreed that he was going against nature and that some time he would burn out.

The cases of Jack Britton and Dundee are interesting. Britton is older than Dundee. He has been in the ring longer and has fought many more times than Dundee. Britton is still going and Dundee is through.

Dundee was never punished badly in the ring and neither was Britton, but Dundee punished himself making all kinds of crazy weights and Britton was happy in finding plenty of competition at his natural weight. Britton is not burnt out and Dundee is.

After he had been beaten by Mickey Walker and had lost the welterweight championship, Britton's friends gathered around and joined sorrowfully in the ceremonies incidental to the closing of a great ring career. But that career was not closed.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Charley Hollocher continues fielding brilliantly.

Baxter Williams, Knoxville catcher, has been sold to the Detroit Americans.

Bob Fitzke, all-around University of Idaho athlete, has been signed as a pitcher by the Cleveland Americans.

Monroe Mitchell, right-handed pitcher of the Memphis team, has been placed on the voluntary retired list because of a sore arm.

Max Carey, center fielder of the Pirates, has been a member of the team since 1911. His speed is shown by his base stealing ability.

Joubert Davenport, Minneapolis pitcher, suffered a broken leg in Milwaukee, when he went in to run for Jay Kirke in a recent game.

Outfielder Joe Moore, who was with Atlanta in the spring, and Johnny Carlin, a semi-pro player from Maryland, have been signed by Little Rock.

Fletcher E. Hodge, giant right hander of the Rochester International club, has been turned over on option to Terre Haute of the Three-I league.

"Connie" Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, is using "Doc" Barrett, the former Williams college trainer, as a scout again this summer.

Omaha has obtained pitcher, Buddy Napier from St. Paul of the American association. The return of Cliff Markle crowded Napier out of the picture.

Russell Pence, Tulsa pitcher, who recently pitched a no-hit game, won a diamond ring which a jeweler had hung up for such a hurling achievement.

Jo Shauite, Cleveland hurler, bids fair to turn in a winning season. Thus far the youngster has proved about the most dependable gunner on the Speaker staff.

Tony Faeth, St. Paul pitcher, came within two feet of a no-hit game in Kansas City. As it was, a roller just out of Danny Boone's reach, spoiled his bid for fame.

Eddie Herr, Detroit scout, is telling the world that Cleo Carlyle, the young Sally league outfielder recently purchased by the Tigers, is the man destined to take Ty Cobb's place in center. Carlyle has been playing a remarkable game for Charlotte and is hitting about .350.

Bass and Brook Trout Fry Placed in Lakes

A car of bass and brook trout fry which was brought to Little Falls Friday from Glenwood to be distributed in the lakes and streams of the county, was taken out and put in the various bodies of water by members of the sportsmen's club.

Eight cans of bass were taken to Lincoln, 8 cans of bass to Cushing, 10 cans of bass to Randall, 2 cans of trout to Randall, 14 cans of trout to Little Falls, and 8 cans of bass to Little Falls.

The fish fry is sent out for distribution by the state game and fish commission and J. M. Totten, who assisted in the placing of the fry, stated today that it was the finest and largest assortment ever received here. The fish were all good sized and not a single one of the entire shipment was lost. — Little Falls Daily Transcript.

"Yes, sir," replied Pat.
"Then why didn't you salute?"
"Well, sir," was the candid reply. "I didn't want to attract more attention than I had to, 'cause I ain't supposed to be out here without a pass."

Syracuse Football Squad in Pre-Season Practice; Half-Back Jim Foley Tackled Low by Vic Hanson

This photograph was taken on University Field, Syracuse, N. Y., when the gridiron candidates were battling hard for places on the varsity eleven. They had been instructed to tackle as though they were playing a regular game and it looks as if Hanson was trying hard to follow instructions.

SENATORS ANNEX FIRST PENNANT

BOSTON FANS CHEER HAPPY MEMBERS OF NATIONALS AS THEY WIN GAME

(From Duluth News Tribune)
Boston, Sept. 30.—Washington won its first American league pennant by defeating the Red Sox here yesterday, 4 to 2, and earned the right to meet the New York Giants in the world's series, which is to open in Washington on Saturday.

When the last Boston player was out in the ninth and the victory of the Senators was assured, a crowd of 10,000 Boston fans cheered the visiting team as it came from the field. Clark Griffith, the veteran owner; Stanley Harris, the "boy manager," and Walter Johnson, famous pitching ace, who will take part in the first world's series of his career, after 18 years in the big leagues, were applauded in turn.
